Odd-Fellows of Richmond and Manchester will celebrate the eighty-ninth anniversary of the order on Sunday at the Bijou Theatre with appropriate addresses and music. Although Sunday was not the day that the five original American Odd-Fellows met in Baltimore and formed the order, yet April 26th is the anniversary. The deputy grand sire of the world, Judge John L. Nolen, of Tennessee, will deliver the principal address. His theme will embrace not only the 2,000,000 of Odd-Fellows, but, necessarily, many of the association adjuncts.

The families and relatives of the Odd-Fellows of the twin cities and the un-three-linked fraternity generally will be welcome. The presiding oscer, Lieutenant-Governor J. Taylor Ellyson, will introduce those participating on the program.

Tuesday Club of Colored Singers Repeats "Jehovah," Winding Applause.

"Jehovah," the sacred cantata, was rendered for the second time by the Tuesday Club in True Reformers' Hall last night. The audience was quite as large and appreciative as on the night before. Last night's chorus was led by Assistant Director A. Barrett instead of the regular director, Edward Ellis, Jr., who had the baton Tuesday night. The orchastra was ably led by Professor Harper Fortune.

Owing to the fact that she is still indisposed, Susie Bell Anderson, "Black Melba," did not sing. From every standpoint the affair has been a great success. The first night's performance paid the expenses, so there will be quite a nucleus for next year's presentation, which will be the "Creation." Already the club has had invitations to perform in Manchester and Petersburgs. Although arrangements have not been completed, it is very probable that the cantata will be sung in both cities.
